For the past 15 years, the STAR Eco Station in Culver City has encouraged children of all ages to learn about preservation and conservation by bringing them into direct contact with wildlife and the environment. This year marks STAR Eco Station's fifth celebration of World Oceans Day. On June 8, 2012, 1,000 students will convene at Dockweiler State Beach, along with local environmental organizations, to celebrate the ocean and marine creatures. The Star Eco Station has requested that parking fees be waived for this event.
